

Amendments to the Claims:

This listing of claims will replace all prior versions, and listings of claims in the application.

Listing of Claims:

Claim 1 (Currently amended): ~~An~~A electric-business method of a software merchandise, said method comprising:

providing said software merchandise, said software merchandise having a plurality of items that are executed by an electric device and thereafter display a plurality of functions of said software merchandise; selecting ~~the~~ parts of said plurality of items; evaluating a selling price of said software merchandise according to ~~said~~ selected parts of said plurality of items; ~~and~~ customizing said software merchandise according to ~~said~~ selected parts of said plurality of items; communicating a request system to a system of software merchandise service, said system of software merchandise at least storing a plurality of computer-executive programs corresponding to said software merchandise and said plurality of items; and outputting said software merchandise to said request system wherein said software merchandise comprises ~~said~~ selected parts of said plurality of items.

upgrading a prior version software merchandise in said request system with said software merchandise if said prior version software merchandise has existed in said request system.

Claim 2 (cancelled).

Claim 3 (currently amended): The electric-business method of claim 12, wherein said request system transmits a serial number comprising a plurality of bytes to said system of software merchandise.

Claim 4 (original): The electric-business method of claim 3, wherein said serial number comprises:

a server code related to said request system;

a version code related to a version information of said software merchandise preexisted in said request system; and an authorization code related to an expiration time of said software merchandise preexisted in said request system, said authorization renewed according to an execution time by said request system.

Claim 5 (original): The electric-business method of claim 3, wherein said serial number is changed after the evaluating step.

Claim 6 (currently amended): The electric-business method of claim 12, wherein said communicating step is implemented through a wire network.

Claim 7 (currently amended): The electric-business method of claim 12, wherein said communicating step is implemented through a wireless network.

Claim 8 (currently amended): ~~An~~ electric-business method of a software merchandise, said method comprising:

communicating a first electric device to a second electric device; providing said software merchandise by said second electric device, said software merchandise displaying a plurality of function through a plurality of items executed by a computer;

selecting parts of said plurality of items by said first electric device; building a customized software merchandise according to ~~said~~ selected parts of said plurality of items; evaluating a price of said customized software merchandise; ~~and~~ outputting said customized software merchandise to said first electric device; and upgrading a prior version customized software merchandise in said first electric device with said customized software merchandise if said prior version customized software merchandise has existed in said first electric device.

Claim 9 (original): The electric-business method of claim 8 further comprising executing a payment procedure according to said price between said first electric device and said second electric device.

Claim 10 (original): The electric-business method of claim 8, wherein said communicating step comprises transmitting a serial number between said first electric device and said second electric device.

Claim 11 (original): The electric-business method of claim 8, wherein said outputting step comprises a serial number included in said customized software merchandise.

Claim 12 (original): The electric-business method of claim 11, wherein said serial number comprises:

a registry code related to communication of said first electric device and said second electric device; and an authorization code related to an expiration time of said customized software merchandise.

Claim 13 (original): The electric-business method of claim 12, wherein said authorization code is changed dependent on an execution time on said first electric device.

Claim 14 (original): The electric-business method of claim 8, wherein said second electric device comprise at least a server belonging to an application service provider.

Claim 15 (currently amended): ~~An~~ electric-business method of a customized software merchandise, said method comprising:

accepting a request of software merchandise service from an exterior electric device; displaying a plurality of items of a software merchandise according to said request of software merchandise service, said plurality of items executed by a computer performing a plurality of functions of said software merchandise; accepting a request of item selection, said request of item selection for selecting parts of plurality of items; calculating a price of said software merchandise, said price dependent on said selected items; ~~and~~ outputting said software merchandise to said exterior electric device; ~~and~~ upgrading a prior version software merchandise in said exterior electric device with said software merchandise if said prior version software merchandise has existed in said exterior electric device.

Claim 16 (currently amended): The electric-business method of claim 15 further comprising:

accepting a request of payment from said exterior electric device; inspecting an identification from said exterior electric device; generating a serial number of said software merchandise according to said software merchandise, said selected items and said request of software merchandise service; and transmitting said serial number to said exterior electric device.

Claim 17 (currently amended): The electric-business method of claim 15, wherein said request of software merchandise service comprising a utility information related to said software merchandise that is preexisted in said exterior electric device.

Claim 18 (currently amended): The electric-business method of claim 15, wherein said serial number comprises an expiration time of said software merchandise executed by said exterior electric device.

Claim 19 (currently amended): The electric-business method of claim 15, wherein said request of software merchandise service is transmitted through a wire network.

Claim 20 (currently amended): The electric-business method of claim 15, wherein said software merchandise comprises a product of package software.